Lebanon Valley College of Pennsylvania

The College Won on All Fronts in 1993-94

In all respects—community service, admissions, fund-raising, academic, fiscal and athletic—1993-94 was a record-breaking year for Lebanon Valley College. The year began quietly enough in a cornfield just east of the Arnold Sports Center. On a warm day in early July 1993, a group of determined volunteers led by Don Frantz '73, senior

The college's Amazing Maize Maze (right) raised funds for Midwest flood victims and made the Guinness Book of Records.

The incoming freshman class (upper right) was larger and brighter than ever before.

Joanne Marx and Director of Student Activities Jennifer Evans set about creating the largest maze in the world. Designed in the shape of a 126,000-square-foot Stegosaurus by British maze artist Adrian Fisher, the "Amazing Maize Maze" attracted more than 6,000 people on a weekend in September, and many others during Homecoming. The maze raised $32,000 to assist victims of the Mississippi River floods that devastated the Midwest. The project, which eventually won a place in the Guinness Book of Records, drew the attention of a wide segment of the national and local media, including "Good Morning America," CNN and USA Today.

That same month, the college welcomed the largest entering class in its 128-year history—365 of the best and brightest students ever. One-third of the freshmen graduated in the top 10 percent of their class and two-thirds were in the top 30 percent. The reasons families cited for choosing Lebanon Valley included the college's academic reputation, attractive campus, convenient location, affordability and its strong sense of community.

At a time when private colleges seem beyond the reach of all but the most wealthy, Lebanon Valley's policy of rewarding a student's high school achievement has found wide acceptance, particularly among middle-income families. Under the scholarship program initiated in 1992, students who rank in the top 10 percent of their class receive a one-half tuition scholarship, those in the second decile receive one-third and those in the third decile receive one-quarter. Students with additional need, as well as those who did not graduate in the top 30 percent of their class, may apply for financial aid based upon demonstrated need.

Not long after students returned for the fall 1993 semester, we began what we hope will be a new tradition at the college—the annual planting of bulbs. During two days in October, students, faculty, neighbors, staff and alumni volunteers planted beds of tulips, daffodils and other flowers—50,000 bulbs. The anticipation of a profusion of color that would greet us in the spring kept many of us going through the long winter.

And what a winter it was—the toughest in many years. Our area experienced more than 100 days of snow cover, so heavy at times that it buried automobiles. For the first time that anyone could recall, the college canceled both day and evening classes no fewer than five times. Even the dedicated maintenance and housekeeping staff could not keep up with the huge volume of snow as they heroically struggled in temperatures that dipped to 20 below zero. Not all of our facilities survived the winter intact. Some $65,000 in damages were reported. Fortunately, repairs were largely covered by insurance.

National Champs

The winter was memorable for another, more positive, reason. The 1993-94 basketball season had the most exciting finish in memory. After capturing the league and MAC titles, the Dutchmen went to the Division III regional playoffs in Lancaster and defeated both the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth and Amherst College.

The following week, eight busloads of loyal Lebanon Valley fans traveled to Buffalo, New York, to cheer on the team—the first in the college's history to make the Final Four. In the first game, the Dutchmen were pitted against No. 1 ranked Wittenberg. With a little more than three minutes to go and trailing by 14 points, not many thought the Dutchmen had a chance. With great energy and determination, Lebanon Valley closed the gap; tied the score and went on to win in overtime. The next night, in an equally exciting game, LVC with an enrollment of 1,000 students took on New York University, which has 49,000 students. In a game billed as a battle between David and Goliath, the Dutchmen won the national Division III championship, 66 to 59, again in overtime.

Junior guard Mike Rhoades received the tournament's "Most Valuable Player" award, was designated Player of the Year by the Eastern College Athletic Conference Southern Division III and was named to the All-American Team. Head Coach Pat Flannery received two prestigious "Coach of the Year" awards. Both Annville and Lebanon County gave the team a tumultuous welcome home, and the nation's media gave the victory great coverage, including a full-page feature on Mike Rhoades in Sports Illustrated.

There was a somber note to the celebration, however, as the team and the entire community mourned the loss of the Dutchmen's No. 1 fan, Frank Aftosmes. A longtime friend of the college and its students, "Hot Dog" Frank died in an Annville nursing home just hours before the final game. National radio commentator Paul Harvey captured the spirit of "Hot Dog" Frank and the Dutchmen in a moving radio report and a syndicated column that appeared in more than 100 newspapers. Lebanon Valley had honored this beloved friend of students and the team's No. 1 fan by naming "Hot Dog" Frank an honorary alumnus last year. A life-size statue of him will be placed in the planned Peace Garden.

The college received its largest grant ever to support the Science Education Partnership program, which will train some 500 teachers over the next four years.

A Season of Successes

In April, spring finally arrived, the snow melted, flowers blossomed and good news abounded. The college received word of two grants from the National Science Foundation (NSF) and the Whitaker Foundation, totaling nearly $1 million. The college had applied for the funds to support a five-county, 14-school-district partnership aimed at improving the teaching of science in grades 4 through 8. The project, directed by Professors Allan Wolfe in biology and Dale Summers in education, is expected to have an impact on some 500 teachers and 24,000 students over the next four years. The NSF also awarded $150,000 to support the efforts of Professor Richard Cornelius to design a new approach to teaching chemistry, based on materials and activities with which students are already familiar.

Record numbers of alumni (left) returned for a combined Alumni Reunion Weekend and Spring Arts Festival.

Lebanon Valley held its annual spring humanities colloquium, a three-day event built around this year's theme, "Baseball as a Cultural Icon." The program, which included panel discussions, lectures, films and a trip to Reading, Pennsylvania, for a minor league game, drew baseball experts from across the nation. The event attracted its share of media attention, including an AP wire story, an article in USA Today and a full-page report in The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Alumni Reunion Weekend coincided in April with the college's annual Spring Arts Festival. The many alumni who returned mingled with the current students, parents and community members who were also enjoying the art and craft exhibits, the musical and theatrical performances and the games and events. One couple, Janet '59 and Bruce Rismiller '59, were inspired by their visit to make a major gift. The largest portion of their gift will be used to help in the construction of the new library. In appreciation, the college will name the tower and entrance plaza of the new library in their honor.

May brought the college's extended family together for a splendid Commencement. The weather was perfect, and the campus looked wonderful. Parents beamed, the music was stirring, the regalia and procession were impressive. Columnist Georgie Anne Geyer was the honorary degree recipient and speaker. Her message to the graduates concerning the world after the Cold War was intriguing and well received. When it was over, faculty and students embraced, families gathered for one more photograph and then the sad parting of friends was eased by the promise of reunions to come.

In June, Lebanon Valley opened The Gallery, a new facility for the arts featuring the Suzanne H. Arnold Art Gallery and the Zimmerman Recital Hall. The Gallery was created through extensive renovation of the former St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The opening was celebrated with an exhibit featuring four outstanding Pennsylvania artists and five concerts that drew standing-room-only crowds. In July, yet another new arts facility, the Leedy Theater, was completed through renovations to the Allan W. Mund College Center. Together, these three projects provide the college with excellent small venues for the arts.

In between all of these events, openings and victories, the day-to-day work of the college continued. We were pleased to receive visiting review teams from the United Methodist Board of Higher Education and from Pennsylvania's Department of Education. Both visits were cordial and affirming.

The progress of Lebanon Valley College over the past few years is due in no small measure to the excellent support it receives from alumni and friends. The number of donors to the college in 1993-94 reached a new high of 5,484. Gifts and grants totaled $3,945,051, an increase of 24 percent over the previous year. Indeed, as a consequence of this year's fund-raising success, the college's TOWARD 2001 campaign is on target, having achieved nearly 70 percent of its goal of $21 million. Solicitation of the remaining funds will focus on the funds essential for completing the new library. Construction began early in fiscal 1994-95.

As the year drew to its close, the campus was still the scene of much activity. A healthy operating surplus provided funds for several important maintenance projects, including an elevator for Miller Chapel, refurbishment of Wagner House for Student Affairs, two new residence hall roofs, refurbishment of the lobbies of the Mund College Center and the Blair Music Center and replacement of several outworn heating and air-conditioning systems. The second of the two buildings that comprise the new Derickson Hall Residences for Lebanon Valley seniors was also readied for occupancy, anticipating a capacity fall enrollment.

Renewing Our Goals

You may recall that in 1991, Lebanon Valley College set for itself some rather ambitious goals to be reached in five years. We wanted to improve facilities; strengthen endowment; give support to new initiatives; and raise the number, quality and diversity of entering students. We are well on our way to achieving many of these objectives despite the rapidly changing and highly competitive environment in which private colleges operate. However successful we become, we must not rest on any supposed laurels.

You will not be surprised to learn, then, that a new strategic plan is already being prepared, one that will carry the college forward into the next century. Led by trustee Dr. Ross Fasick '55, a broadly representative group of faculty, staff, alumni, parents, students and trustees has been meeting since February. The Strategic Planning Committee's report is due in December and will be widely shared and discussed within the college family before being considered for adoption by the faculty and trustees.

The past year has been immensely gratifying to all those who care about Lebanon Valley College. We offer our thanks to all those who by their work, their talent, their dedication and their generosity helped make this year so special.

Continuing the Vision: In 1905, Lebanon Valley College undertook a visionary campaign to raise funds to match a $50,000 gift from philanthropist Andrew Carnegie to construct several new buildings on campus, including the Carnegie Library (now the Carnegie Building) pictured here. A century later, the college is engaged in another major fund-raising campaign—TOWARD 2001—and again the centerpiece is a new library.

In Advancement, It Was the Best Year Ever

Dear LVC Friends:

The 1993-94 academic year was a "banner year," and the colors of that banner were blue and white. From the "Amazing Maize Maze" through the enrollment of the largest class in the history of the college, the national NCAA Division III basketball championship, a stirring Commencement on a near-perfect day, to the climax of the year with a month-long celebration of art and music in the new Gallery, it was a breathtaking year.

And on top of everything else, in 1993-94, the level of giving to Lebanon Valley College was the highest ever. The total of all gifts and grants, including government, was $3,945,051, up 24 percent over last year. The number of donors also reached a new high—5,484—a 23 percent increase over the previous year.

Last year, the TOWARD 2001 campaign really got rolling. Congratulations to National Chair Tom Reinhart '58 and the other campaign leaders. They brought the campaign, at the end of its third year, to a total of $14 million, two-thirds of the $21 million goal. With most of the facilities goals achieved, our focus now becomes the new library, currently under construction. We must redouble our efforts to assure successful funding of what has been aptly called the college's "most valuable educational tool."

Special TOWARD 2001 milestones during the past year included:

- The Lebanon Area Business Campaign, which kicked off in the fall. Trustee Wendie DiMatteo Holsinger and her volunteers went well over their $750,000 goal. Congratulations!
- Drs. Clark and Edna Carmean '59 chaired the Campus Family phase, which secured over $330,000, with 67 percent of the faculty and staff participating.
- The first Alumni/Friends regional campaign opened in Lebanon County in the spring. Libby and I were pleased to chair that effort, which also went over its goal of $1.2 million. More regional campaigns will be held in the forthcoming months.

A banner year such as this only happens through the efforts of our loyal volunteer members of the Advancement Committee. No report would be complete without a "tip of the hat" to the chairs of the various programs.

- Under the leadership of Alumni Fund Chair Kristen Angstadt '74, alumni participation surpassed 36 percent, placing Lebanon Valley alumni among the leaders nationally.

- "Hot Dog" Frank Aftosmes will be memorialized with a life-size statue in the planned Peace Garden. Trustee Marty Gluntz '53 and his committee have been working on this significant way to remember the college's No. 1 fan.

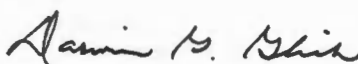

- And special thanks for achievement in the annual giving area to Helen and Gary Crissman, parents of Catherine '94, for their work with the Parents Fund, which reached an all-time high; to Trustee Jim Hanford for chairing the Friends Annual Fund; to Professor Jeanne Hey for heading the Faculty/Staff Fund; to Len Schott for chairing the Corporate Annual Fund; and to Don Leshner for taking the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership golf tournament through its fourth successful year.

- Art Committee Chair Susie Arnold guided the Friends of the Gallery through a year of construction and creativity, and we are all thrilled with the new Suzanne H. Arnold Art Gallery and Zimmerman Recital Hall.

A year like the one reported on in these pages doesn't just happen, as you can see from the activities above. But there is another element to our success: a dedicated staff. I'd like to recognize the Advancement staff—in Alumni Programs, College Relations and Development—for their professionalism and strong support of all the volunteers.

My thanks to everyone for the finest advancement year in the history of the college. Now the question "What do you do for an encore?" comes to mind. My answer is to look to the fine people mentioned in this annual report. They all are dedicated to the success of Lebanon Valley College and its mission of education and service.

We will endeavor to merit your continued confidence and support.

Top Teachers

Honored at the May 14 Commencement exercises for excellence in teaching were Barbara S. Wirth, assistant professor of accounting, and Dr. Sidney Pollack, professor of biology. The two shared the Thomas Rhys Vickroy Award for maintaining the highest standards of service through classroom teaching, advising and active promotion of good teaching as a community ideal. In addition to being superb teachers, Wirth and Pollack were instrumental in organizing a series of cooperative learning workshops for Lebanon Valley faculty. The newly established program received a $5,000 Institutional Incentive Grant from Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education, which will be used to fund next year's workshops.

Foreign Policy Wizard

Dr. Eugene Brown, professor of political science, co-authored a book on the U.S. foreign policy-making process. Puzzle Palaces and Foggy Bottom: U.S. Foreign and Defense Policy Making in the 1990s, published by St. Martin's Press, has found wide readership in academic, government and military circles. Brown also was a popular speaker and panelist at academic seminars throughout the year, including the annual meeting of the International Studies Association in Washington, D.C., where he served as chair and discussant on two panels, "Foreign Policy Analysis" and "Nuclear Weapons in Asia."

Friends of the Gallery

"Art deals with things forever incapable of definition that belong to love, beauty, joy and worship; the shapes, powers and glory of which are forever building, unbuilding, rebuilding in each man's soul, and in the soul of the whole world."

Lebanon Valley Education Partnership

The Lebanon Valley Education Partnership is a program being carried out with the Lebanon School District that encourages young people to consider attending college. The three-part program familiarizes students with the college environment, identifies those qualified to pursue a college education and provides scholarship funds if they should choose Lebanon Valley. Each September for the past four years, friends of the college and representatives from local industries have participated in a golf outing at the Lebanon Country Club. The tournament has raised over $200,000 for scholarship assistance. The honorary chair each year has been Lebanon native Sam Bowie, center for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Grant Winner

The National Science Foundation awarded a $150,000 grant to Dr. Richard Cornelius, chair and professor of chemistry (pictured here with sophomore biochemistry major Christina Walters), to develop a new curriculum for introductory chemistry. Titled "Chemistry Domesticated," the curriculum will highlight an understanding of chemistry by using materials and activities familiar to students. The 22 chapters include such titles as "The Sun," "Ice Cream," "The Laundry Room" and "Soil and Fertilizer." Student assistants will work with Cornelius to develop the chapters, which can be used in high school or college freshman chemistry courses.

Planned Giving

The Honors Society

The Honors Society of Lebanon Valley College was established on March 15, 1987, to recognize alumni and friends who have planned for the future by naming the college in their will as a beneficiary for $10,000 or more, or by purchasing a charitable gift annuity, establishing a charitable remainder trust or giving real estate or insurance policies to the college. This group has pledged over $5,000,000 for future buildings, scholarships, and endowment to assure the well-being of Lebanon Valley College.
